

City of Boulder's Office of Environmental Affairs and Xcel Energy:

FREE Energy Efficiency Workshops: Xcel Energy - How to Lower Your Energy Bill and Be More Comfortable This Winter

What: Free workshop. Get your home buttoned up for winter with useful, practical advice, including up-to-date rebate information. Topics covered include insulation, heating, water heaters, windows, lighting, and appliances. Presenters are local certified energy efficiency experts.

When: Wednesday, February 28th, 2007 from 6:30-8pm with Paul Kriescher OR Tuesday, March 13th, 2007 from 6:30-8pm with Rich Moore

Where : East Boulder Senior Center, 5660 Sioux Drive, Boulder

For more information: Call Yael Gichon at 303-441-3878 or gichony@bouldercolorado.gov

About the presenters:

Paul Kriescher is a Principal with Lightly Treading Energy & Design a Denver based consulting company specializing in passive solar design, energy efficiency engineering and economics, E-star energy ratings and HVAC sizing and design consulting. Mr. Kriescher currently serves on the Habitat for Humanity of Metro Denver's Plan Review committee. He also is also a past Board member of the Colorado Renewable Energy Society, a chapter of the American Solar Energy Society and E-Star Colorado. Kriescher holds a M.S. in Energy Analysis & Policy, from the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Rich Moore has worked in the field of residential energy conservation performing energy audits, weatherization services, training, and consultation for homeowners and builders since 1984. He has been a regular presenter at numerous regional and national conferences, including several at the Affordable Comfort Conferences (since 1994), the National EEBA Conference in Denver, and at DoE Weatherization Conferences in Atlanta, Oklahoma City, and Phoenix. In Colorado, he served as a trainer and Training Center Coordinator for the Governor's Office of Energy Management and Conservation weatherization program.